

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of controlling a social network access control list (ACL) for a shared resource includes monitoring communications to and from a user. Social network data from the communications to and from the user is determined. An access level for the user is determined 5 based on the social network data. The access control list is configured to provide the user the access level determined for accessing the shared resource.